Result of the Late Movements-Enemy's

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, Oct. 29 - The late movements of this army have resulted in extending our lines as far as Hatcher's Run, on the Duncan road, a distance of about three miles beyond our former position on the left, and in the discovery of the exact position of the enemy's lines and the works erected for their defense, as well as a more complete knowledge of the country between us and the Southside railroad It was not believed that the enemy had any very strong works in this direction, and that, taking them by sur-prise, they could be easily driven into the inner lines of Petersburg; but, to the surptise of all, not only were the enemy found intrenched on both sides of the Boynton plank road, but that they has strong works on both sides of the run. extending several miles.

road, drove the rebels from their works on the south side of the run and across the bridge, of which they held possession until ordered to withdraw.

In the advance of the 5th corps they moved on the south side of the run, and the road being very crooked in this vicinity, by keeping close to it, there was a gap between its left and the right of the 2d corps. The enemy took advantage of this, and, massing in the woods under cover, made a most determined assault on the right of the 2d division of the 2d corps, evidently with the intention of capturing the entire force on the right. Their charge for a very short time was a success, but our men railied, charged in turn, and driving the rebels back, cut off the greater part of Anderson's brigade of Hill's corps. The number of prisoners thus taken here was about 400, including many officers.

the 2d corps.

Darkness approaching, and it being deemed unsafe to occupy so extended a line with strong works in front, and exposed to flank attacks from cavalry, orders were issued to withdraw about two miles, which was done without loss. During the engagement the enemy drove our men from two guns, but before they could be removed, our men charged and retook them. The loss of the enemy cannot be stated, but is thought to be about as heavy as our own in killed and wounded, while their loss in prisoners is much larger than ours. We took about five hundred altogether during the day.

Meade, witnessed the various movements. During Thursday night the rebels made an assault on our works south of where the mine was sprung, but were driven back with considerable loss. Near the same place, a party from the 1st division of the 2d corps made a Colonel, a Major, a Captain, and a Lieutenant, two guns

REBEL ACCOUNTS OF GRANT'S MOVE. MENTS From the Richmond Enquirer, Oct. 29.1 At an early hour yesterday morning a movement in force upon our works was developed by the enemy on the lines below Richmond. and on the right of our line before Petersburg. During the previous night the enemy had made extensive preparatory maneuvers, and, it is said, had received heavy reinforce-against our right, bringing about a heavy cannonade, which was intermingled some time atter with considerable skirmishing. The enemy made no determined attack upon our front, but seemed to be simply feeling the strength of our line. They continued to move out to the right, however, upon a line parallel to our works, skirmishing occasionally along our exterior line, but making no impression. Upon reaching the vicinity of the junction of Nine Mile road with the Williamsburg torn-pike, they made several serious efforts to break our line, but were repulsed with considerable loss. The cannonade continued during nearly the entire day. The principal fighting occurred on the Williamsburg and Nine Mile roads, some seven or eight miles from the city. Our losses were very slight. Firing ceased about six o clock in the evening. Pending the progress of affairs on the north side a still more vigorous attempt was made by the enemy before Petersburg to extend their lines toward the Southside railroad. They advanced at an early hour in force, upon our works on Burgess' farm, on the Boynton plank road, seven miles southwest of the city, and made seven assaults upon them, but were sig-the gallant General Dearing, of South Carolina, it is reported, was killed. After their sanguinary repulses in the morning, the enemy remained comparatively quiet on the right, but commenced in the afternoon some heavy cannonading and mortar shelling on the left of our Petersburg front. The losses of the enemy are, of course, unknown. It is evident they are prepared now to operate on both flanks, and it is likely they will attempt to extend their lines upon both sides simultaneously. They were yesterday within a short distance of the York River Railroad, but the further they proceeded in that direction the deeper they got into the swamp country, which is somewhat more uncomfortable, if not so dan-getous, in winter than in summer. What object they can have in stretching out their line on this side, unless it be the rather questionable object of getting upon the Central Railroad.

it is not easy to divine as yet. It is certain and quite satisfactory that they made nothing out of anything they attempted on yesterday. Whatever their design was, whether as a "feeler" or as the beginning of a grand assault, it was a costly and a useless enterprise.
